

Texas A&M University
Aggie Muster Committee
Mission Statement

Our Responsibility

Aggie Muster at Texas A&M University extends beyond the bounds of campus and out into the world. We commit ourselves to seeing that this cherished tradition continues and prospers. It is our responsibility to:

- Plan the campus observance held each April 21st and the events that surround it.
- Give every family a fitting memorial—filling Reed Arena with spirit and empathy.
- Assure the 50-year reunion class of a respectful homecoming and reassure them that the Spirit of Aggieland is alive and even more vibrant than ever before.
- Inspire current students to carry on the Muster tradition when they leave Texas A&M University and go to every corner of Texas, the United States, and the world.

Our Reward

Ultimately, we will share the sense of accomplishment felt when each piece comes together on April 21, and we will know that each of us played a part in one of the great traditions at Texas A&M. While we are planning Aggie Muster we hope to learn as much as possible about how highly motivated people work together, get things done, and enjoy each other's company. We want lasting friendships with others who feel the same way we do about Muster and Aggieland. We want to observe and practice leadership, group dynamics, compromise, selfless-service, and open-mindedness. We want to discover new facts about traditions at Texas A&M University, especially the history of Muster itself.

Our Pledge

We are a group of students who are hardworking, enthusiastic, open-minded, loyal, caring, dedicated, flexible, humble and understanding. We hold the Aggie Spirit in the highest honor and are committed to carrying on the tradition of Muster through the campus Muster ceremony on April 21 of each year.

Texas A&M University
Leadership Selection and Transition Process

Responsibility for establishing the schedule for committee leadership selection and transition belongs to the outgoing Chair and advisor. Described below is the committee's standard process. Each year, this process is shared with the new student body president to ensure that it is aligned with expectations of the new Student Government Association administration. The goal of this process is to select qualified leaders to oversee the work of the committee for the coming year. To be able to apply for either one of these positions, you have to have served on the Aggie Muster Committee for at least one year. In general, this process begins April 22 and is concluded before the first reading day for spring semester final examinations so that there is no conflict with students' academic commitments.

Typical Selection and Transition Schedule

Tentative Timeline for 2021 Chair and Executive selection process:

- April 8-Chair/Executive applications available
- April 25-Both applications due
- April 26-Chair interview and selection
- April 29-30-Executive interviews and selection
- May 7-Transition meeting

How the Process Works

Chair Selection: Upon completion and submission of the application, the committee advisor, outgoing Chair, and new student body president will interview applicants for Chair. Interview lasts approximately 30 minutes, and cover such issues as past leadership experience, experience on the committee, leadership philosophy, and time commitments. Upon selection of the Chair, it is then the responsibility of the new Chair (from here on referred to as the Chair) to review the applications for Executive.

Executive Selection: Specifics for reviewing and evaluating applications for Executive are at the 2021 Chair's discretion (acting with the advisor). Upon completion of the application review process, the candidates will each be interviewed in 20 minute intervals by the Chair and advisor. Interview questions are at the discretion of the interview panel, but generally consist of leadership philosophy, personality strengths, subcommittee goals, etc. In the Executive selection process, it is a goal of the selection panel to not only pick the most experienced and qualified applicants, but also those applicants who best "complement" each other. That is, those applicants whose strengths and weaknesses will combine and form a well rounded diversified Executive team.

Transition Process: Upon selection of the new Executive team, a letter notifies the applicants, and a transition meeting is held with the advisor, old and new Chair, and old and new Executives. The purpose of the meeting is to bridge the transition process from old to new leadership. Each process of the year, including individual subcommittees, retreats, selection, and ceremony, is analyzed. The old and new alike seek to look at all of our processes and specify changes that need to take place in the following year. During this time, job notebooks are exchanged, and each subcommittee Executive team (old and new) meets to pose and answer questions, give advice, and offer support.

Approximately 4 hours should be allocated for the transition meeting. Attendance at the meeting is required for both old and new committee leadership.

General Committee Selection

With the exception of April 21st, the selection process is the most important event of the year for the Muster Committee. This process is held in September, the beginning of the Fall semester. The following procedure has been set to ensure fairness and objectivity in selection. All information revealed by applicants in the written application and interview process is to be kept strictly confidential among the Executive team.

At no time is it to be discussed with outside parties, nor should it be discussed with committee members once the process is complete. Nor should members of the Executive committee team reveal any information regarding the selection process to applicants that might give them an unfair advantage – including, but not limited to interview questions.

Application Review

Every applicant will put their entire University Identification Number (UIN) on the pages following the cover page of the application. The applicants will submit four copies of the essay answers along with the cover page. Once every application has been received, the cover page will be removed, and the essays will be sorted and given a number.

The Executives and the Chair will convene to read and score the essays. Each member of the exec team will read, evaluate and score each application.

Once all of the applications have been read and scored by all exec members, the scores will be submitted to the Chair who will compile the scores for each applicant.

The applicants will then be sorted in descending order. The committee will interview roughly twice as many applicants as there are open committee positions. The applicant with the highest score will be invited first, then the one with the second highest score, etc., until the number of allotments is filled.

The interviewees' UINs will be posted in ascending order in the Student Government office as soon as possible for interview sign-ups.

Interviews

Throughout the entire interview process Executives are to maintain a professional attitude and demeanor. This is demonstrated by treating all interviewees equally before, during, and after the interview, so as not to demonstrate favoritism to friends and or/associates. Because interviews are held in a formal setting, interviewers are to conduct themselves in a mature and behaved manner at all times.

Three members of the committee's exec team should be present at each interview to ask questions and to evaluate the interviewee, with one of the three members being the Chair. It is desirable that a fourth member be present to greet potential members in the hallway and to escort them inside the room for their interview when the interviewers are prepared.

During the interview, each potential member is asked five questions. With the exception of the first question, all responses are scored equally. The combined response score is used to provide an overall "interview" score.

After each interview, the score sheets will be collected by the Chair in order that he/she may compile all interview scores upon the conclusion of all interviews.

Final Selection

The applicant's application score will be combined with their corresponding interview score. Members will be chosen according to high scores. Returning committee members will be evaluated by their score as well as their end-of-year evaluations. Applicants with the highest score will be invited to be on the committee, assuming there are no disciplinary problems or past unpleasant incidents involving the Muster Committee.

Before finalizing the list, grades must be checked and verified that they fall under the Student Government guidelines.

During the final selection process, a member of the Executive team may challenge any of the applicants who made the cut. A challenge may be based only upon prior knowledge of an individual's poor performance within a student organization at Texas A&M, facts displaying an applicant's weak ethical character, or a relevant event deemed appropriate by the advisor and Chair.

Prior to its first General Committee Meeting, one member of Fish Aides will be chosen to serve within the committee's ranks. The Fish Aide is held to the same standards and expectations of every other committee member.

Two alternate members (a first and a second) will be selected from the applicant pool at the same time as the rest of the general committee; the alternates will be selected using the same criteria as the rest of the candidates. In the event that an applicant who is invited to join the Muster Committee declines, an alternate will be invited to join in his/her place. The alternate members' identity will be revealed to no one outside the Executive team.

Host Selection

The following procedure has been set to ensure fairness and objectivity in selection. All information revealed by applicants in the written application and interview process is to be kept strictly confidential among the Executive team.

At no time is it to be discussed with outside parties, nor should it be discussed with committee members once the process is complete. Nor should members of the selection team reveal any information regarding the selection process to applicants that might give them an unfair advantage – including, but not limited to interview questions. This process takes place at the beginning of each Spring Semester.

Application Review

Every applicant will put their entire University Identification Number (UIN) on the pages following the cover page of the application. The applicants will submit four copies of the essay answers along with the cover page. Once every application has been received, the cover page will be removed, and the essays will be sorted and given a number.

The Host Coordinators and RC&F Executives will convene to read and score the essays. The Host Coordinators and the RC&F Executives will read and evaluate each application. There are three questions on the application. After reading all three answers, a score will be given by each grading member.

Once all of the applications have been read and scored by the Host Coordinators and RC&F Executives, the scores will be submitted to the RC&F Executives who will compile the scores for each applicant.

The applicants will then be sorted in descending order. The committee will interview roughly twice as many applicants as there are open host positions. The applicant with the highest score will be invited first, then the one with the second highest score, etc., until the number of allotments is filled.

The interviewees' UINs will be posted in ascending order in the Student Government office as soon as possible for interview sign-ups.

Interviews

Throughout the entire interview process Executives and the RC&F sub-committee are to maintain a professional attitude and demeanor. This is demonstrated by treating all interviewees equally before, during, and after the interview, so as not to demonstrate favoritism to friends and or/associates. Because interviews are held in a formal setting, interviewers are to conduct themselves in a mature and behaved manner at all times.

Three members of either the Executive team or RC&F sub-committee should be present at each interview to ask questions and to evaluate the interviewee. It is desirable that a fourth member be present to greet potential members in the hallway and to escort them inside the room for their interview when the interviewers are prepared.

During the interview, each potential member is asked four questions. With the exception of the first question, all responses are scored equally. The combined response score is used to provide an overall "interview" score.

After each interview, the score sheets will be collected by the Chair, RC&F Exes or Host Coordinators, in order that he/she may compile all interview scores upon the conclusion of all interviews.

Final Selection

The application score will be added to the interview score. Hosts will be chosen according to high scores. Applicants with the highest score will be invited to be in the Host program, assuming there are no disciplinary problems or past unpleasant incidents involving the Muster Committee.

Before finalizing the list, grades must be checked and verified that they fall under the Student Government guidelines.

During the final selection process, a member of the Executive team may challenge any of the applicants who made the cut. A challenge may be based only upon prior knowledge of an individual's poor performance within a student organization at Texas A&M, facts displaying an applicant's weak ethical character, or a relevant event deemed appropriate by the advisor and Chair.

Publicity and Media Relations Guidelines

Ultimately the Chair and Advisors oversee all interaction with the media, from the Battalion to the Associated Press. However, the External Relations Coordinator handles some interaction with the media as well, typically in the form of our awareness push. At the beginning of the year we go over how to handle phone calls, emails, or personal invitations to speak to the media. Committee members are directed to their Executives, Executives then filter the message to the Chair and Advisors.

The Muster Tradition

The Muster tradition had its beginnings at a meeting of the Association of Ex-Cadets on June 26, 1883. A statement of objectives noted: "In reunion we meet and live over again our college days, the victories and defeats won and lost upon drill field and classroom. Let every alumni answer a roll call." During the 1890's the Corps of Cadets made annual visits to the San Jacinto Battlefield, followed by a parade down Houston's Main Street as celebrations of San Jacinto each April 21 became the custom. In the early 1900's it was agreed that in addition to honoring the freedom of Texas, April 21 would be a time to pay homage to all students and former students who had passed on, and some living comrade would answer "Here" when the roll call for the absent was read. During World War I, groups of Aggies met in trenches all over Europe and at Army posts in America, but no April 21 events were held on campus.

In 1923, a nationwide rally of former students was planned to provide Aggies an opportunity to “meet old friends again and live over the old days in College Station.” Student radio station WTAW broadcasted a special program consisting of a medley of A&M songs, words from football Coach D.X. Bible and Aggie yells by the cadets. The March 1923 Texas Aggie urged, “If there is an A&M man within one hundred miles of you, you are expected to get together, eat a little, and live over the days you spent at the A&M College of Texas.” By 1929, meeting had become international, and, in 1942, A&M Muster gained international recognition when 25 men, led by General George Moore '08 mustered during the Japanese siege of the Philippine island of Corregidor. In addition, two Aggies reportedly held Muster in a submarine.

And so it has been over the years, since that small group of Aggies on a beleaguered outpost of World War II inspired what has developed into one of our greatest traditions. Muster is more than a ceremony. It represents a pledge and a responsibility that A&M men and women have handed down from year to year, from generation to generation. It gives us a chance to renew our loyalty and unity, which constitute the basic foundation of our friendship for each other and our love and devotion for our school.

Evolution of Muster

Aggie Muster began as a celebration of Texas' victory over Mexico at the Battle of San Jacinto. “San Jacinto Day” was set aside as April 21st by college administrators and was a day of track and field events celebrating Texas' independence. Throughout the years April 21st continued to evolve and became the homecoming for Aggies. In 1922 the first major organized celebration took place in Waco, Texas, and in 1924 the Texas Aggie magazine stated “In every town where there are as many as 2 Aggies let us have a meeting April 21st”. Texas A&M's first campus Muster ceremony took place in 1944, and in 1946 the Victory Homecoming Muster was held at Kyle Field with General Dwight D. Eisenhower as speaker. Muster has been held on campus at Guion Hall, Kyle Field, the grass of the Memorial Student Center, G. Rollie White, the steps of the Systems Building and currently at Reed Arena. The week of Muster serves as the reunion for the 50-year class and a day of camaraderie for current and former students. The day begins with a flag raising ceremony in the Academic Plaza, a barbeque in the Academic Plaza followed by the evening's ceremony in Reed Arena. The ceremony consists of traditional Muster poems, a keynote speaker, and a Roll Call for the Absent. During the Roll Call for the Absent the names of those Aggies who have passed away within the last year are called and a loved one answers “Here”. Currently there are over 400 Musters held worldwide, with the largest being held on campus at Reed Arena.

The Aggie Muster Committee finds its roots in 1943, when the first planned Muster ceremony took place. At this time packets were created outlining a suggested ceremony format. In 1945 a committee of 45 cadets organized the campus Muster, and by 1950 a permanent committee was established.

History of Aggie Muster

Following is a brief history of Aggie Muster. For more detailed information, the definitive work on this subject is Softly Call the Muster by Dr. John A. Adams (Texas A&M University Press, ISBN 0-89096-586-2).

Muster is an old military word meaning gathering, roll call, or the retirement of a soldier. Muster on the Texas A&M campus began in 1883 as a time for Aggies to remember their college days. In 1889, Muster unfolded into a San Jacinto field day to remember the battle during which Texas won its independence. Throughout World War I, Aggies began to gather around the nation on April 21st. The first major San Jacinto celebration occurred not in College Station, but in Waco in 1922.

In 1924, the first major organized observance of Muster on A&M’s campus occurred. Three years later, Taps was played in honor of the dead. Through time, new traditions pertaining to campus Muster evolved.

During World War II, many Aggies were called to battle. One of the most famous Musters occurred in 1924 in the midst of Japanese fire on the island of Corregidor. Many other Musters occurred worldwide during the war, and they continue to occur.

In 1946, a victory homecoming was held in Kyle Field, where 15,000 people gathered to hear the keynote speaker, General Dwight D. Eisenhower. This homecoming included three days of banquets, and the dorms were cleaned and made available for guests to rent.

On April 21, 1951, the Memorial Student Center was dedicated in honor of those Aggies who sacrificed their lives in World War II, and the Muster was held on the front lawn.

From 1970 to 1997, all but a few of the campus Musters were held in G. Rollie White Coliseum. In 1998, campus Muster was moved from G. Rollie White to the newly completed Reed Arena.

In the early 1980's, the lighting of the candles during the roll call for the absent became a part of campus Muster. This part of the ceremony first began in Lubbock in the mid-1960.

Aggie Muster brings together Aggies past, present, and future to recognize the Aggies who lost their lives within the last year.
